"I am glad to follow Colonel Roosevelt, as I always have done and as I hope to continue to do," said Mr. Taft, amid great applause.

FRANK GOULD LOSES IN RAILROAD FIGHT

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 3.—Despite the announcement at noon today that Frank Gould had won his fight for representation in the directorate of the St. Louis Southwestern railway, when the balloting was finished this afternoon, it was found that the old directors had been re-elected. The diligent member of the Gould family was defeated.

B. Lancaster Williams, who was elected a director of the Missouri Pacific early last summer, and whom Frank Gould sought to place in a similar position on the St. Louis Southwestern, following today's meeting, said:

"In checking our list with that held by the management, we find that there are a number of duplicates or reverberations on both sides. Under those conditions I am convinced that to insist upon a contest at this time would be likely to lead to controversy and possibly to litigation."

COMMON PEOPLE ARE GETTING THE WORST OF IT

Need Fraternalism to Rescue Them From Between Millstones Says F. W. Farmer to Yeomen's Convention.

Special Correspondence to Morning Journal

Santa Fe, N. M., Oct. 2.—The Brotherhood of American Yeomen, Field Men of New Mexico, met at Delgado's hall Saturday, September 24, for instructions. There were seventy-five district managers present from all over the state of New Mexico. Business of vital importance was transacted pertaining to the future work of the separate districts of this state. At the conclusion of the business session F. W. Farmer made an address.

Mr. Farmer, speaking on fraternalism, said:

"The societies of this great fraternal system are composed of the common people. Our membership is made up of common people—the people Lincoln said the Lord loved because he made so many of them. They are the people who bear the burdens of our government, who fight its battles and pay its taxes. They are also the people who are ground between the upper and nether millstones of special privilege. They pay tribute to the men who produce the raw material, the manufacturer, the wholesaler, the retailer, the commission men, and the railway lines that transport both the raw material and the finished product. They are caught both 'soul and goad.' And we, claiming to be fraternalists, stand supinely by and permit these brothers of ours to be buffeted about, robbed of their value, their labor produces, and forced to pay tribute to wicked combinations in buying the necessities of life. The only consolation we give is that when the end comes we will pay your families a benefit. To an outsider it might seem that our actions were premeditated. The poorer our brothers get the more they need our insurance. The crime of the age has been the exploitation of our national resources by a few individuals, in their greed for gold, they serve the world master more faithfully than most Christians serve the best; indeed it seems that they strive harder to lose heaven than the saint does to gain it."

"Private ownership and monopoly of our great coal deposits, our iron ore, our oil, which a wise Providence stored in the earth for all, the poor, is wrong. The owners of these natural resources are selling the people what all fairness is their own. I will never believe that Carnegie rightfully owns practically all the iron ore, the most useful of all metals, unless I see the title deed from heaven. Fraternalists might assist in conserving what remains of our natural resources. This concerns every one of our 8,000,000 members. Why should we not concern ourselves about the welfare of our certificate holders, just as we do about the welfare of their families after they are dead?" Miller wrote.

"What boosts it at one gate to make defense, and at another to let in the foes?" Fraternalists stand at the gate of poverty and defend against it, but the other gate where poverty originates is wide open and fraternalists take no heed!" This situation may be described as a river in which are many human beings struggling to get to the shore; some succeed and some are carried down the stream and drowned. Away down the river a number of people called fraternalists are assisting the unfortunate. It is a splendid thing, a 'splendid' thing, to help the victims out of the water. It would be still more splendid if some of those kindly people on the shore engaged in the rescue work would go up the stream and out who were pushing the drowning ones out of poverty and distress. It would be better if we could go up the river and stop the pushing of people into poverty and distress. The Almighty intended that life should be enjoyed and not forever vexed with toil and pain.

"I do not mean that our societies or our press should get into politics. Far from it. I believe both the dominant political parties are doing the best they can for the people. But their best is poor enough. They need the assistance of organized fraternalism. There are few, if any, really serious questions upon which the parties are divided, and we need have no fear of getting in a row among ourselves, if we undertake to mould public opinion in some of the great moral and economic questions."

At the close of his address he was loudly applauded.

The next meeting will be held at Albuquerque on January 2.

The organization also embodied the Field Men of Texas and Arizona in the Brotherhood of American Yeomen. Field Men's Organization, of which F. W. Farmer is president.

WRECKED BATTLESHIP

Dayton, Oct. 2.—An examination of the after section of the battleship Maine, comprising about one-third of the ship, has removed all doubt from the minds of the engineers of the responsibility of building a bath-head and floating it out to the centerboard. Consequently the setting of the bath-head will be commenced as soon as material is received.

A portion of one of the forward magazines is now visible but its condition does not warrant a conjecture regarding the character of the explosion that sent the Maine.

DIRECT LEGISLATION FACES SUPREME TEST

Case Now Before U. S. Supreme Court Which Seeks to Put An End to Initiative and Referendum.

(By Morning Journal Special Lease Wire.)

Washington, Oct. 2.—The task of attempting to put an end to all initiative and referendum legislation in this country began today in the supreme court of the United States.

Counsel for the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph company filed a brief, attacking the taxing law of Oregon because it was initiated under the initiative clause of the state constitution, which is alleged to be in violation of the federal constitution.

It is urged that the failure of the committee to have a hearing before the raising of its taxes by the initiative method placed the company at a disadvantage, while others taxed are being heard by the state legislature. In this way it was claimed equal protection of the laws was denied it.

The initiative amendment and the Oregon tax were denounced as violations of the right of each state to a republican form of government, which was guaranteed by the federal constitution. It was contended that in legislative assemblies the minority rarely if ever fails to moderate the wishes of the majority, however powerful, but that government by direct legislation is government by brute force.

"It were better," the telephone company contends, "that the struggle against abuse and corruption should continue than that they should be eradicated by theories and practices of government revolutionary in character and founded on error or injustice."

I am deeply interested in the growing good sense of our people with respect to the building and maintenance of good roads. All the roads that led to Rome were the trails of her mighty empire. One of her highways, starting in Scotland, went to the coast of the British channel, then resumed its way through ancient Gaul, down along through Italy, through Rome and on beyond until it reached the sacred shrines of Jerusalem, and had at home its grand central thoroughfare. In the Appian Way, along which walked and drove in chariots and rode on Arabian coursers, in the pristine powers of the empire the world's greatest poets, philosophers and warriors. All the roads that led to Rome led also to navigable waters. So all our roads that are worth more than a couple of miles to navigable waters. To my mind there is no more profitable means of development for this country than in the adoption and nurture of railroads.
